EAGLE EMPIRES

Legacies are a rich part of MSU's history and future.

Dear Alumni and Friends of MSU,

The first and most important core value of Morehead State University is that people come first. People are the lifeblood of an institution. Whether you are an alumnus, friend, retiree, parent, donor or employee, you are a member of the Morehead State family.

From our founding by mother and son, Phebe and Frank Button, family has been an integral part of the MSU story. In this issue of Statement, we are highlighting some of the rich family traditions and alumni legacies during the University's 126-year history. I hope you enjoy reading these inspirational stories that unite all of us in one common ancestry as we relate to memories, values, experiences, faces and places.

Sue and I continue to be proud members of the MSU family and look forward to another exciting and successful year.

Best wishes,

Wayne D. Andrews

Eagle cheerleading squads bring home national titles

The MSU cheerleading program maintained its standard of excellence and retained its national championship status. The Eagle squad won its 33rd and 34th national championships at the Universal Cheerleaders Association College National Championships in Orlando, Fla., in January.

Bridget Razem and Ronnie Patrick started the weekend off with a national champion partner stunt routine.

In the coed division I category, the Eagles took home another national championship to add to their storied tradition.

In addition to earning multiple national championship honors, the stunt group of Maddie Jenne, Melissa Bull, Taylor DeSimone and Emily Kaltenbach turned in a runner-up finish while the all-girl squad made it through the semi-finals, earning a second-place overall finish in the finals.

The MSU dance team also competed at the Universal Dance Association College Nationals for the first time in 12 years. The team advanced to the finals and finished sixth overall.

Coleman named head cheer coach

Kentucky native Mark Coleman, who possesses more than 15 years' experience coaching at all levels, has been named head cheer coach at Morehead State. He will direct all activities for the programs, assist with mascot appearances and the dance team, choreograph routines and coordinate community service projects involving the cheer and dance teams.

Faried wins NBA award for work off the court

Former Morehead State basketball star and current NBA Denver Nugget Kenneth Faried (11) is known for working hard to get a rebound. He's also received attention for working hard to help his community.

Faried has been named the 2012-13 winner of the J. Walter Kennedy Citizenship Award. Named after the NBA's second commissioner, it's presented annually by the Professional Basketball Writers Association to the player, coach or trainer who shows outstanding service and dedication to the community.

Back in February, Faried won the NBA's "Kia Community Assist Award" for his efforts in the community along with his ongoing philanthropic and charitable work.

His specific interests were the championing of equality and bringing awareness to the importance of respect and inclusion.

He recently became a member of Athlete Ally, an organization working to encourage acceptance of homosexual athletes in sports, and attended the launch party for One Colorado to celebrate the passing of Senate Bill 11, The Colorado Civil Union Act.

The Nuggets forward has shown his support for the community in various ways.

He purchased a block of season tickets for distribution to children from Special Olympics Colorado, Denver Public Schools and the Denver Rescue Mission as part of the team's community ticket program, participated in a Team Fit clinic for St. Jude Children's Hospital as part of the NBA Cares Pediatric Cancer Awareness and joined the giveSPORTS Equipment Drive to support victims affected by both the Colorado wildfires and the tragic movie theater shooting in Aurora, Colo.

MSU sponsors veterans' expo

Morehead State sponsored the first Eastern Kentucky Veterans' Expo on June 14 at Boyd County Middle School in Ashland. The event was dedicated to assisting and publicly recognizing the men and women who have honorably served and are currently serving our nation in the U.S. military.

The Eastern Kentucky Veterans' Expo linked veterans to employers in Kentucky as well as Ohio and West Virginia. It offered educational resources along with legal, medical, mental health and family counseling. The event also honored veterans, military service members and their families while offering a free meal and prize drawings. ## MSU chosen to participate in NCAA pilot program

The NCAA has selected Morehead State as one of six institutions for a grant as part of a three-year pilot program aimed to increase student-athlete academic performance.

The Morehead State athletic department will receive $360,000 from the NCAA over the next three years. The University will also contribute $180,000, which pushes the grand total to $540,000.

The grant program pilot is designed to assist institutions in further developing systems and enhancements that help schools meet the requirements of the NCAA's Academic Performance Program, including increasing the graduation rate and academic success of student-athletes. MSU sports teams, as well as individual student-athletes, have both received multiple honors for scholastic and athletic achievements. The University has claimed the Ohio Valley Conference's Institutional Academic Achievement Award a conference-record 12 times. The Eagles also claimed a league-best three Team Academic Achievement Awards in 2011-12.

A total of 104 Morehead State student-athletes were named to the OVC Commissioner's Honor Roll last school year. To be listed, recipients must post at least a 3.25 GPA, be eligible in their NCAA-sponsored sport and a member of the team during its competition season.

Much more opportunity.

The campaign for Morehead State University

For more than 125 years, Morehead State University has provided life-changing opportunities for more than 64,000 alumni. We want to continue to deliver hope, promise and opportunity for generations to come, and we will accomplish this goal through "Much More Opportunity: The Campaign for Morehead State University."

The financial goal of the "Much More Opportunity" campaign is $25 million, making it by far the largest fundraising effort in the University's history and our first-ever campaign. We have an ambitious goal and a clear vision of how these funds should be utilized to take Morehead State University to a new level.

The campaign is focused on four funding priorities. Each of these categories has specific projects where funds can be used to make significant and visible progress in the growth and improvement of MSU.

- We will advance academic excellence by increasing affordability of MSU's educational offerings and providing even more opportunities for students' growth and success through research.
- We will continue to foster our bond between the University and the community by promoting the region's artistic heritage through the Kentucky Center for Traditional Music, and giving both visitors and alumni a place to connect through the construction of an MSU Welcome Center.
- We will begin to implement a master plan to make sweeping improvements to our athletic facilities.
- We will grow the University's annual fund, which provides immediate budgetary support to meet the changing needs of the institution.

Morehead State University is on a mission to educate people and serve our region. With the current economic climate, donor generosity is needed, now more than ever, to fulfill that dream. The donated funds will help finance initiatives outside the scope of the state and tuition-funded budget that will put us one step closer to becoming the best public regional university in the South and allow this "light to the mountains" to shine brighter than ever.

"MSU alum and Super Bowl MVP quarterback Phil Simms is a walking testament to Morehead State University's ability to produce true champions. Simms is just one of many MSU alumni who have gone on to achieve tremendous success but never forgets the importance of giving back to MSU."

*~ Brian Hutchinson, Class of 1996
Director of Athletics*

"Morehead State isn't just a college. In addition to an education, I will leave campus with new experiences, new friendships and an abundance of memories."

~ Emily Griffith, Class of 2014

Eagle EMPIRES

Legacies are a rich part of MSU's history and future.

Morehead State University has produced tens of thousands of Eagle alumni. If you took the time to look at the names of those MSU graduates throughout the University's 126-year history, you would probably notice more than one instance where a particular name just keeps popping up.

That's because there are many families with multiple generations that have come to MSU to further their education and turn their dreams into a reality.

The Holbrook and Allen families are just a couple of examples, but in a lot of ways, they are the examples.

Both families can trace their roots back to ancestors who played pivotal roles in the University's early development and continued growth. As the two families came together, they carried on a family legacy that has produced new MSU graduates with each passing generation.

Multiple members of the Holbrook and Allen families have made invaluable contributions to the growth and success of MSU with a family tree that beams with the colors of blue and gold.

Allie W. Young

For the Holbrook family, its legacy can be traced back to a man who helped turn MSU into a public higher education institution.

Allie W. Young, a native of Morehead, was a prominent attorney who later became a judge and state senator in the early part of the 20th century. It was Young's political clout that convinced the State Normal School Commission to turn the then-named Morehead Normal School into a state institution. The school officially changed its name to Morehead State Normal School in the fall semester of 1923.

Young received the honor of having a new building on campus named after him in 1926. Formerly a residence hall, Allie Young Hall currently serves as a student services building and houses the Caudill Health Clinic.

Linus A. Fair

Fair originally came to MSU as an instructor of mathematics in 1932 but later became the University's registrar in 1950 while continuing to teach math courses. He then served as president of the Kentucky Registrars and chaired MSU's Athletic Committee for more than 10 years.

He was presented with the Founders Day Award for University Service in 1979 and the Linus Fair Scholarship also was established in his name to provide financial assistance to math majors.

Merl Fair Allen and John Edward "Sonny" Allen

John Edward "Sonny" Allen and Merl Fair Allen's courtship began in Breckinridge Training School on the Morehead State campus. He was a star basketball player. She was a cheerleader.

Sonny and Merl would go on to play similar roles later and each made their own distinct mark on MSU history.

Sonny carved out a legendary career for the then-named Morehead College basketball squad while earning bachelor's degrees in health/physical education and sociology in 1950. He was an All-American his senior year, ranks third on MSU's all-time scoring list and is the only player in MSU history to make an all-conference team all four years of his college career.

"Everything he tried in athletics, he was good at," Merl, 85, said.

"We always said Sonny was as cocky as all get out, but a good cocky," said Jane Young Holbrook, a childhood friend of Merl and Sonny.

He returned from the Korean War to coach the Eagles baseball team for 14 seasons, winning OVC championships in 1957, 1969 and 1973 and earning OVC Coach of the Year three times. He later retired as MSU's assistant athletic director but worked closely with the MSU Foundation until his death in 1999.

Allen Field, MSU's baseball stadium, is named in Sonny's honor, and his retired basketball jersey hangs proudly in the rafters of Johnson Arena.

"I look up at that banner that has my papaw's number on it and I get emotional," said Kristina Jane Holbrook Alderman (92), Sonny's granddaughter. "I feel almost like an ownership of it."

Merl graduated from Morehead College in 1948 with a bachelor's degree in home economics and went on to teach home economics for 30 years at high schools in Falmouth, Flemingsburg and Morehead. Sonny and Merl married in 1950. They had four children: Janie Allen Holbrook, Susan Jeanette Allen Chin (77), Patricia Ann Allen James (79) and Dwayne Edward Allen (84).

Merl has been assisting MSU in key roles for half a century. She was a secretary and member of the Board of Trustees of the MSU Foundation for two decades and served on the MSU Alumni Association for 32 years, including a two-year term as president.

Merl's father, Linus A. Fair, earned the Founders Day Award for University Service in 1979, and she followed in his footsteps, earning the honor in 2003.

Along with sharing an award with her father, Merl also shares a philosophy of his that she hopes passes through the generations.

"Daddy was insistent. He said you needed as much education as you possibly could get," she said.

Harold Edward Holbrook I and Jane Young Holbrook

Harold Edward Holbrook and Jane Young Holbrook also fell victim to young love. They began dating at the age of 14 and would later go on to 65 years of marriage.

"We both loved Morehead and we loved each other," Jane said. "We fit like pieces of a puzzle."

The two Morehead natives both had a bit of MSU history in common.

Harold's grandfather, Dan Martin Holbrook, was one of the very first full-time teachers at the then-named Morehead Normal School in the late 1800s and his father, Roy Ernest Holbrook, coached Breckinridge Training School's only football team and the basketball squad as a student teacher. Jane's father is Allie W. Young, the political force that helped establish Morehead State Normal School as a public institution.

Jane has fond memories of growing up near campus, where she and her friends would play until dark. Her dad passed away when she was young, but she feels a connection to what he left her.

"What made this a great town was the University," Jane said. "The greatest thing he did for me was leaving me a great town to grow up in."

Harold was a student-athlete at Morehead State, taking pre-dental courses while also playing basketball. He finished his dental schooling at the University of Louisville and he and Jane remained in touch through letters and phone calls while she was a sophomore at the University of Kentucky. After marrying in December 1946, the two lived in Morehead, where Harold practiced dentistry for 42 years before he passed away in May 2012. The couple had three children: Cynthia Holbrook Combs, Harold Edward "Eddie" Holbrook Jr., and Terri Tuttle.

Over the years, she has taken on a new duty: family MSU historian.

She's saved countless documents and photos of the Holbrook and Allen families. She feels it's important for as many family members as possible to know the role their ancestors played in the growth of this institution.

"When you get to my age, you want them to know what their heritage is," she said. "I want them to know what's behind them."

Jane "Janie" Allen Holbrook and Harold Edward "Eddie" Holbrook Jr.

For two families each with their own separate and significant ties to MSU's history and growth to come together, it's only fitting it happened at a place very familiar.

"Breck (short for Breckinridge Training School) was such a small school that everybody knew everybody," said Jane "Janie" Allen Holbrook.

Sonny Allen (left) became an MSU basketball legend thanks to his contributions on the court. A young Linus A. Fair (center) was voted "most handsome" during his college years. He and his daughter, Merl Fair Allen (right), would both eventually go on to earn the Founders Day Award for University Service.

What started off as making homemade T-shirts for family and friends eventually turned into Holbrook's Embroidery Plus, which Janie, Eddie, their daughter, Kari, and her husband, Cameron Flanders, opened in downtown Morehead in 2000.

“ I think MSU pride will stay in the family. I don't think it'll be lost. It's on all sides. It's in our blood. Always will be. ” Eddie Holbrook Jr.

As it turns out, Janie knew her future husband long before they got married. She and Harold Edward “Eddie” Holbrook Jr. both went to Breck from first through twelfth grade, with Janie being one year behind Eddie. The two began seeing each other in high school and would marry after Janie graduated in 1969.

“It didn't take us very long to realize that what we wanted to do was to spend the rest of their lives together,” Eddie said.

The two each spent a brief time studying at MSU before deciding to start a family. The couple had four children: Kristina Jane Holbrook Alderman (92), Harold Edward “Tripp” Holbrook III, Kari Suzanne Holbrook Flanders and John Allen Holbrook.

From there, Janie ran a day care from the couple's home for 26 years while Eddie found work and served in the National Guard for six years before taking his current job at Big 4 Lumber Inc./ACE Hardware in Morehead.

It was one of Janie's crafty and creative hobbies that would allow the Holbrook's to give back to MSU in a big way. Every holiday, she would make handmade shirts for the children she baby-sat and other family members. She and Eddie later bought an embroidery machine and began taking local orders out of their house. When people from as far away as West Liberty came knocking on their doorstep, they realized there was a big demand that spawned a big idea.

“At first, they thought it was just going to be a personal hobby. I was like, look, we have a tiger by the tail and we need to decide what we're going to do,” Eddie said.

“That was the straw that broke the camel's back,” Janie said. “We decided somebody's going to have to start the business.”

The business grew so much that Janie quit running her home nursery to assist Kari, the store's manager, a few years later. It eventually moved from its original location at 110 W. Main St. down the road to its larger, current location at 117 E. Main St. Some of the retail store's earliest orders were from people wanting to show off their MSU pride.

HEP now finds itself frequently filling larger orders for the University. Members of MSU fraternities and sororities get much of their Greek-themed merchandise made there. Eddie said it makes him feel good to know his family business allows even more people to be exposed to MSU.

“I'm very, very proud to be a part of this University family. Without MSU, we wouldn't have our business,” he said. “Nothing makes me happier than to see someone wearing a piece of clothing that has MSU's insignia on it. If we did it, that makes me even prouder.”

As Janie and Eddie's children have gone on to have children of their own, the Holbrook family continues to make efforts to ensure that MSU pride endures as the family tree continues to grow. They try to inform them of the family legacy and show them what Morehead State has done to change their lives in the hopes that, wherever they go in life, they'll always carry a little bit of Eagle spirit.

The “Lake” Effect

Lake Kelly’s legacy lives on at MSU.

Spirited students and long-standing Morehead State alums both want to see the Eagles make their mark in athletic competition. In the case of the Kelly/Tenyer family, it’s much more than that.

Whether it’s playing on the court, coaching on the sidelines or cheering in the stands, this family’s Eagle pride stretches across three generations and has helped to advance the athletic culture at MSU.

The Kelly and Tenyer family legacy in athletics started with a coach and his equally competitive wife. The late Lake Kelly (61) got his first college coaching job when he became an assistant basketball coach at MSU in the 1960s. His wife, Martha “Marti” Kelly, was his ever-present supporter and the Eagles’ biggest unofficial cheerleader.

Marti recalls when her husband took the job at MSU, she felt like she belonged. After a tough game on the hardwood, many of the players and supporters would end up at the Kelly household for a postgame meal or gathering.

“You had an instant social life and everyone was so nice and so friendly,” Marti said. “The University was like your second family.”

The time that followed led the two on what Marti calls a “career adventure” as Lake moved up the coaching ranks. He would eventually take the head coaching job at OVC rival Austin Peay State University, where he led the team to three NCAA tournament appearances, and was an assistant coach at the University of Kentucky during their run to the Final Four in 1984.

While Lake's career eventually led to him departing MSU, Lake and Marti's three children each managed to continue the family's athletics legacy as either student-athletes or eventual MSU staff members. Brian Kelly (86) was a basketball player for MSU in the 1980s while the oldest son, Lake Jr. (84), is currently employed as the natatorium service technician in Morehead State's Recreation & Wellness Center.

Marti and Lake's only daughter, Jane Kelly Tenyer (94), is currently the assistant director at the wellness center and oversees areas of fitness, wellness and student development.

Jane knew firsthand what it was like to live in a household that was obsessed with competitive sports. Aside from the X's and O's, she saw the fulfillment her family got by taking care of student-athletes.

"I grew up with a coach and it's a neat thing to get to experience, to get to watch your dad work," Jane said. "I admired my dad because he affected so many young people and they became family."

She was born into the coaching lifestyle and Jane's romantic life would also lead her down that familiar road.

She met her husband, Rob Tenyer, in 2004 while she was working on campus and Rob was serving as assistant coach for the MSU football team. Over the course of 12 years, he too has grown to see the University as an extended family.

"The institution has really allowed me to grow as an individual and I've just kind of bought into the mission and the spirit of the University," Tenyer said. "People ask me all the time, 'Why Morehead State?' The answer is simple: it's the people."

In December 2012, Tenyer was promoted to head coach of the MSU football squad. While he will be leading his players on the gridiron, another member of the Kelly family will be trying to help the Eagles succeed on the basketball court.

Drew Kelly, son of Brian and Gloria Kelly, is a red shirt junior and power forward. He originally attended Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, but when his grandfather Lake passed away, he decided to transfer to Morehead State to be closer to his family.

Drew said he knows he made the right decision to come to MSU and he feels like he is playing for more than just himself.

"Playing here, you're playing more for your family. More a community instead of just a school," Drew said. "I can play for them and keep the Kelly tradition going."

Whether Drew takes to the court at home or on the road, there's a good chance you'll see the Kellys and Tenyers in attendance. You'll surely catch Marti there not only cheering in the stands but bringing something extra for the players' spirits and appetites.

"She gets to baking and makes us all kinds of bags of cookies and rice cake balls and other things. They all love it," Drew said.

"There's just something about sports that just gives you a little added zip," Marti said. "Here I am, 76, still jumping up and down and screaming at teams. There must be something about that that keeps me young."

Jane said that she and Rob do their part to keep traditions like that from never dying. She'll work up a sweat baking sweets in the kitchen just like Marti did and the Tenyers will have players over for meals or just good conversation. She wants the Kelly and Tenyer families to continue to contribute to success in MSU athletics, but she said the family's real legacy can't be found in any stat sheet.

"More than awards and championships, to us, life is about making an impact in a positive way. Making an impact in a young person's life," Jane said. "That's what it's always been about."

Tenyer named MSU's head football coach

Rob Tenyer has spent the past 12 seasons helping the Morehead State University football team achieve success on the sidelines as an assistant coach. Now, Tenyer is being tasked to lead MSU football into the future.

Tenyer has been named the head coach of the MSU squad, making him the 14th coach in school history.

"He has always exhibited tremendous passion for our program and when I began to think about who should lead it, it became evident that Rob had the requisite experience and plan to do so," said MSU Athletics Director Brian Hutchinson. "I was particularly impressed with his preparation and vision for our team's success."

A football, basketball and baseball star growing up, Tenyer graduated from Marine City High School (Mich.), where he was an all-league selection in all three sports and eventually was inducted into the hall of fame in 2010. He later went on to attend Olivet College in Olivet, Mich. On his way to earning his bachelor's degree in 1995, he was a four-year letter winner at quarterback and served as the football team's captain his senior year.

Tenyer's coaching career would take him across the country and overseas before he came to MSU. He worked in several notable camps in Alabama, California, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas and was a player/coach with a professional team in Landsberg, Germany, in 1996. His first college coaching job came when he took a position as an assistant coach for Centre College in Danville from 1998 to 2000.

Then, he made his way to MSU as an assistant coach, where he would eventually coach almost every aspect of the Eagle offense. He's coached running backs all 12 years, but also served as a receivers coach, strength and conditioning coordinator and equipment coordinator. His experience on the offensive side of the ball led to his promotion to offensive coordinator two years ago.

Under Tenyer's guidance, the Eagle offense set 29 school records. MSU's offense paced the Pioneer Football League in five statistical categories in 2011 and six in 2012, including leading the PFL in points, total yards and passing yards.

Coach Tenyer is equally focused on keeping his players in line academically. He has been the football staff's academic liaison the past two years, where he monitored and assisted more than 100 student-athletes in their pursuit of degrees at MSU.

"Given that the PFL champion will now appear in the FCS playoffs, we needed someone with the energy and drive Rob has to lead us there," Hutchinson added.

Coach Tenyer sees becoming the head coach of the MSU Eagles as a chance of a lifetime, and he'll use all of experience to ensure the team becomes a force on the gridiron.

"I wouldn't have taken this job if I didn't think we could win and be successful," Tenyer said.

An MSU legacy passes from mother to daughter

Trisha Nance Young (93) is a proud Morehead State alum who wanted nothing more than for her daughter, Deanna Bruce, to carry on the family legacy. Deanna, at first, wasn't quite sure if MSU is where she wanted to be.

She needed a bit of persuasion, and at one of MSU's Open House events, it's exactly what she got to turn her into a proud Eagle.

For mother Trisha, MSU was always a logical choice. Growing up in the small town of Coal Grove, Ohio, she was looking for an institution that would make her transition from high school to college life as smooth as possible.

"It was overwhelming at first, but MSU was everything I wanted it to be," Trisha said. "Everything was easy to get to. It was easy to navigate. Students, faculty members, everybody was just very nice and very accommodating."

Trisha went on to earn a B.A. degree in paralegal studies. This is also where she met Deanna's father, Scott Bruce (92). When she reflects to her time on MSU's campus, it's always with a sense of pride. As for Deanna, a 17-year-old junior at Paul G. Blazer High School in Ashland, MSU was one of several options for college. She decided she and her mother should both attend an MSU Open House event in March.

Turns out, Deanna liked MSU for a lot of the same reasons that her mother did. She liked the proximity to home along with the campus's size and small-town feel. What ultimately sold her on MSU was an informative experience and a welcoming spirit.

"When I got to meet some of the professors, I felt like they could relate and they know what I'm going through as an incoming freshman," Deanna said. "My campus visit kind of sealed the deal. If I could have moved in when I went for our campus visit, I probably would have."

With Deanna slated to begin her freshman year at MSU in Fall 2013, she said she will arrive on campus with a great deal of excitement to start her own college journey while continuing to honor her family's college heritage.

"I like that traditional feel of keeping on that legacy. My parents both graduated from MSU with four-year degrees. I like the feel of following in your parents footsteps."

Baldwin leaves behind legacy of service

Morehead State University lost a man who served his University, community and country with pride. Lt. Col. Alan R. Baldwin, an MSU retiree and former Morehead councilman, passed away in his home July 14 at the age of 66.

A former assistant to the provost, Baldwin joined MSU in 1978 as an assistant professor of military science. After leaving briefly, he returned in 1985 and was named chair of the Department of Military Science after which he held numerous titles. MSU's Veterans Resource Center was named in his honor in February.

Born in Danville, he attended schools in Hopkinsville and graduated from Vicenza (Italy) American High School. He earned a B.A. degree from Eastern Kentucky University in 1968 and a M.A. degree in history from MSU in 1990.

Baldwin's eventual position with the Department of Military Science was well earned through years of military service. A Commandant's List graduate of the U.S. Army Command and General Staff College, Baldwin was a graduate of the Defense Language Institute.

Army postings included Ft. Still, Okla., three tours in Germany and a year in Vietnam, where he served as commander of a transportation company. He received the Bronze Star, two Meritorious Service Medals, the Joint Service Commendations Medal and two Army Commendation Medals. He held various commands and staff positions during his 22-year career before retiring from the Army with the rank of lieutenant colonel.

Baldwin made a permanent home in Morehead in 1989 and built a reputation as an active and passionate member of the MSU staff until his retirement from the University in 2009. He enjoyed all aspects of university service and loved planning and coordinating the annual holiday dinner parties and fundraising galas at MSU. He took a leading role in bringing the Governor's Scholars Program to MSU's campus and remained involved with that program until his death.

His service extended to the community, where he was owner and part-time operator of a "nonprofit" antique business on Main Street. Hoping to stimulate downtown development, encourage tourism and make it an even better place to live, he served on many committees and boards. He thoroughly enjoyed his many years on the City Council. He also took pride in being a great husband, father, grandfather and inspirational public servant before he succumbed to a lengthy battle with cancer.

He is survived by his wife of 45 years, Yvonne Honeycutt Baldwin (81); son, Matthew Alan Baldwin (99) and wife Farrah Long (01); daughter, Amanda Carrie Baldwin (05) and husband John Clay Howard; grandson, John Baldwin (Jack) Howard; and granddaughter, Mallory Grace Baldwin.

Inaugural celebration, “Bluegrass Ball,” features MSU talent

Tony Pence (12), contributing writer

America’s 57th Presidential Inauguration festivities began the weekend of Jan. 19. The Marriott Wardman Park Hotel was the backdrop for the Bluegrass Ball, considered each four years to be one of the premier inaugural galas.

The Kentucky Society of Washington has played host to the non-partisan Bluegrass Ball since Kentuckian Alben Barkley was vice president in 1949 and has long been considered by Washington insiders as one of the two or three “go to” galas. This year did not disappoint as the 2013 edition of the Bluegrass Ball was noted by the Washington Post as an Editor’s Pick.

The Bourbon Trail, sponsored by the Kentucky Distillers’ Association, began the formal event as the black-tie clad dignitaries and guests arrived. The Letcher County High School and Jr. ROTC Band provided the Call to the Post as couples were escorted in promenade down the staircase into the Grand Ballroom. The mistresses of ceremonies for this year’s event were former Kentucky first lady Phyllis George and her daughter Pamela Brown. The national anthem was sung by 2012 Miss Kentucky Jessica Casebolt. Greetings were offered by Gov. Steve Beshear, Congressmen Brett Guthrie, Thomas Massie and Andy Barr, and a toast to the Commonwealth was given by Congressman John Yarmuth. More than 1,000 guests were treated to a four-course dinner by Celebrity Chef and Iron Chef America alumnus Edward Lee of 610 Magnolia in Louisville.

When the formalities of speeches and toasts were completed, Electric Ledge was joined onstage by Gov. Beshear, Lt. Gov. Abramson and Ashley Judd for the singing of “My Old Kentucky Home.” The band is comprised of Morehead State music faculty, guitarist and bandleader Glen Ginn; keyboardist Dr. Steven Snyder; saxophonist Dr. Gordon Towell; and bassist Daniel Cecil, as well as Lexington drummer and percussion educator Paul Deathridge. Rounding out the ensemble were featured vocalists Tony Pence (12) and Lisa Ginn.

The performance by Electric Ledge came about when Mac Riley, past president and current treasurer of the Kentucky Society of Washington requested his friend Pence recruit a band willing to travel to Washington, D.C. Pence’s discussion with Ginn resulted in the University sponsoring the transportation expenses, and on location, the band was hosted by Mac and Michelle-Anne Riley, making possible the band's gratis performance at the Bluegrass Ball.

While in the capital city, the MSU contingency was received at the Army-Navy Club for a Friday evening dinner that included Chef and Mrs. Lee, Gene and Judy Clabes of Paris, and hosted by the Rileys and their daughter Mary Catherine.

Saturday morning, the group toured the monuments around the tidal basin and the Lincoln Memorial. The afternoon included the load-in, sound check and the streets of the city as Electric Ledge prepared for the evening's entertainment. Excitement was in the air at the Wardman Park Grand Ballroom when the band took the stage a little before 10 p.m., and played non-stop until approximately 1:30 in the morning.

The Bluegrass Ball also was attended by Rep. Rocky Adkins (82) of Sandy Hook and Sen. Robin Webb (83) of Grayson.

About the writer: Tony Pence is host of both The Bluegrass Railroad and The Country Jukebox on Morehead State Public Radio. In addition to radio, he is a veteran singer/songwriter who also writes an occasional column for KyForward, an online newspaper based in Lexington, featuring the arts in the foothills of Appalachia. After a 20-year career in the insurance industry, he returned to academia and graduated from MSU.

Ashley Judd was among the special guests in attendance (above) who joined Electric Ledge on stage for a performance of "My Old Kentucky Home." Tony Pence (right) also took the stage as a featured vocal performer.

2013 SPRING GALA

Guests received the red carpet treatment upon arriving at the 2013 Spring Gala.

True to its Kentucky Derby theme, this year's Spring Gala even featured a "Call the the Post" performed by MSU alum and music professor Greg Wing (76).

Amber Philpott Hill (03), award-winning journalist from WKYT in Lexington, hosted "All Things Kentucky" at the Morehead State Opry in Button Auditorium.

With horses and jockeys roaming the grounds, the campus was transformed in honor of the Spring Gala's Kentucky Derby theme.

COMMENCEMENT

During the morning graduation ceremony, student representative Logan Higginbotham (13) of Morehead gave the commencement address to the newest MSU graduates.

This year's spring commencement honored the first graduating class from MSU's new Doctor of Education (Ed.D.) program.

Stephanie G. Gibson (13) of Salyersville had the honor of representing her graduating class while giving the commencement address for the afternoon graduation ceremony.

MSU ROTC officers were commissioned during the spring 2013 commencement proceedings.

Harbaugh goes from Eagle gridiron to Super Bowl success

Anyone who watched Super Bowl XLVII not only got to see the Baltimore Ravens edge out the San Francisco 49ers to become the champions of the NFL, they got to see just how much the Harbaugh family is synonymous with the game itself.

Ravens head coach John Harbaugh faced off with his younger brother, 49ers head coach Jim Harbaugh, in what was referred to by many as the "Harbaugh Bowl." Both of these successful coaches worked through the ranks to reach the elite level. In the case of John Harbaugh, the journey started at Morehead State.

One of the reasons John came to MSU is partly because he was simply following in his family's footsteps. His father, Jack Harbaugh, was an assistant coach in 1967 and oversaw the Eagles' defensive secondary.

Bill Baldrige (68), who would later become MSU's head football coach from 1983-89, was a player under Jack and was a babysitter for the Harbaugh brothers on occasion. He said he kept tabs on the Harbaugh boys and thought the world of them, but was surprised when John inquired about a job on his coaching staff.

"I got a call in 1987 from John and I thought he was going to recommend somebody. I was waiting for him to say who he was going to recommend and he said, 'Coach, I would like to get into college coaching.' I said, 'Don't fill out an application. You've got the job. Come on up here.'"

Baldrige gave John his first coaching job in college football during the 1988 season, and he gave him plenty of responsibilities. As an assistant coach, John was the special teams and defensive backs coach while also serving as recruiting coordinator and overseeing the players' strength and conditioning. He coached at MSU for one season before taking a special teams coordinator position with the Cincinnati Bearcats.

On the way to the Lombardi Trophy, John has remained grateful to MSU for giving him his first shot. Baldrige and his family got to attend a Baltimore Ravens game last season as John's guests.

"I texted him and said, 'It was quite an honor to be there.' He texted me back and said, 'I'm thankful to be there one day for you.' I was like, wow," Baldrige said. "He hasn't forgotten about Morehead State."

MSU student-athletes receive multiple honors

For the student-athlete, juggling studies and sport is no easy task. At Morehead State, the student-athletes that have excelled in the classroom and in athletic competition received special recognition.

The Morehead State Student-Athlete Honors Banquet, hosted by the Student-Athlete Advisory Committee, celebrated the academic and athletic achievements of MSU student-athletes.

The Male and Female Scholar of the Year awards were presented to redshirt-junior baseball player Nick Duff and senior soccer player Samantha Toepfer. The awards are presented to the student-athletes with the highest cumulative GPA and is generally awarded to upperclassmen.

Toepfer, a Cincinnati native, is a mathematics major with a 3.95 GPA. She has received the Ohio Valley Conference Medal of Honor twice and is a three-time member of the OVC Commissioner's Honor Roll. Duff, born-and-raised in Morehead, is an exercise science major with a 3.85 GPA. He's also a CoSIDA First-Team Academic All-District II honoree and was twice named to the OVC Commissioner's Honor Roll.

The Mr. and Miss Eagle awards were given to senior football player Donte Sawyer and senior volleyball player Ellie Roberson for their standout play within the Pioneer Football League and the OVC.

A native of Acworth, Ga., Sawyer set MSU single-season and school-career records, most notably in receptions and receiving yards. The First-Team All-PFL player was invited to participate in the Football Championship Subdivision Senior Scout Bowl.

Hailing from Louisville, Roberson helped the Eagles to a perfect 16-0 conference record and 26-7 overall mark while being honored as the OVC Female Athlete of the Year and the OVC Player of the Year. Roberson was also named an American Volleyball Coaches Association Honorable Mention All-American and was a FirstTeam All-Midwest Region selection.

Roberson was also awarded the Laughlin-Miller Award, which is presented to student-athletes exemplifying athletic and academic excellence, character, and a dedication to both school and community service.

The Eagle volleyball team earned the Team Academic Award for the third consecutive year after posting the highest team GPA (3.61) out of the 16 MSU squads. After completing 300 hours of service, the softball team earned the Team Community Service Award, which is given to the team that shows the most dedication to the Morehead community.

NCAA Guidelines

Morehead State University is committed to upholding the highest degree of academic and athletic integrity. Therefore, we are providing this information to assist our loyal supporters in understanding often confusing NCAA regulations.

The NCAA defines "representatives of athletic interests" as alumni, friends and boosters of the University. Member institutions are held accountable for the actions of their representatives. A single violation of NCAA rules by a representative could jeopardize the eligibility for Eagle athletic programs.

Our coaches and student-athletes have worked hard over the years to attain success, both in the classroom and on the playing fields. By assisting the University in rules compliance, you help maintain the integrity of Eagle Athletics, and protect the eligibility of our student-athletes.

Eagle runner experiences triumph and tragedy at Boston Marathon

It wasn't the first marathon Lesley Gray (98) had ever run, but it was certainly the biggest.

The Boston Marathon is a landmark achievement for any runner. Regardless of placing, merely qualifying for the race is an accomplishment in and of itself, let alone finishing it.

After completing the 2013 Boston Marathon, Gray felt a mix of pain and euphoria fueled by fatigue, endorphins and adrenaline. She felt the satisfaction of success having once again pushed her body through 26.2 grueling miles to accomplish a goal few have achieved.

After the race, she felt something different because of the tragic bombings at the 2013 Boston Marathon - feelings of uncertainty, confusion and fear.

Before having to deal with the shocking circumstances of that day, Gray was caught up in the entire experience leading up to the race. She had previously completed six marathons, recording a personal best time of 03:38 at the 2012 Carmel (Ind.) Marathon. With that time, she received notification in October 2012 that her application had been accepted and she could run the 2013 Boston Marathon.

"It's so funny because you're sitting there and you're like, 'Holy crap! I got in!' and then you're thinking, 'Oh my gosh! I've got to train,'" she said.

Gray made the trip to Boston with her boyfriend, Marty Kinney, and she said she felt like royalty when she got there. Cab drivers and hotel staff all offered words of encouragement after learning of her participation in the race. She joined the other 27,000 runners at the "Starting Village" in Hopkinton, Mass., and as she began her run, she felt not only the race's grand scale but also the city's enthusiasm.

"The crowd support was amazing. They're on their front lawns. They're handing out oranges, Twizzlers, Popsicles," Gray said. "It's like a holiday to them."

Gray made it into downtown Boston and crossed the finish line with a time of 03:52:58. Feeling disoriented, dehydrated and cool because of skyscrapers blocking the midday sun, she was overcome with emotion. She was looking forward to an aluminum blanket, her commemorative medal, seeing her boyfriend and calling her mother, not to mention an indulgent post-race meal. In the family reunion area, she made a phone call to another Louisville runner she had met in Boston to let her know she was heading back to the hotel.

"As soon as I hung up the phone, the first blast hit. We were a block away and it was very loud. It was this huge metallic boom and you saw everybody kind of shudder," Gray said. "Instantly, you just knew something was wrong."

Seconds later, Gray heard the second explosion, which prompted her and Kinney to start walking away from the smoke. She called her mother and asked her to look on the Internet to see if anything unusual was happening in Boston. Gray walked around confused in the massive crowd in an unfamiliar city on high alert. She saw several workers in business suits standing outside glued to their phones when her mother called back.

"She said, 'Stay away from trash cans, stay away from large gatherings and get to a hotel'," Gray said.

The couple was trying to find their hotel but ended up walking three miles in the wrong direction. They eventually stumbled upon a YMCA in Chintatown and Gray, skin cold and covered in salt, went in for a warm respite before catching a cab back to her hotel.

Gray would later learn that her personal goal of completing the Boston Marathon in less than four hours probably saved her life. The first explosion went off 17 minutes after she crossed the finish line.

While many runners at Gray's hotel gathered in the lobby eating hamburgers and drinking beer in celebration of their accomplishment, she was still shaken.

"I told Marty, 'I'll never run a big race again. I'll only run 5Ks'," she said.

At dinner, she met a two-time Boston Marathon runner from England and discussed the bombings, trying to make sense of it.

"I'm going to run for appreciation of those who helped that day and those who stepped up that day. I think I'll probably cycle through a lot of it. Each day, I feel something different about this."
Lesley Gray (98)

"He said, 'I'm angry. I'll be back next year. I won't change my routine. I'm a Boston Marathoner'," Gray said. "The hairs on the back of my neck stood up."

The conversation stuck with Gray, and while the terrible act marred the pinnacle of her running career, it also gave her another reason to race.

"I know that every time I run, it'll have a different meaning. I may be running for someone who lost their life on that day, somebody who lost a family member, somebody who lost a limb, somebody who was sitting there in the crowd and said, 'I want to do that some day,' and had that taken away," Gray said.

Recently, Gray completed her eighth marathon. At the last minute, she signed up and ran the 2013 Kentucky Derby Festival Marathon in Louisville and finished with a time of 03:42, 10 minutes faster than her Boston Marathon time. That qualifies her for the 2014 Boston Marathon and she's already started searching for hotel accommodations.

"It's amazing what your heart will let your body do," she said.

2012 ANNUAL DONOR REPORT

Includes gifts of $250 or more made between January 1 and December 31, 2012.

Gifts below the $250 level will be recognized on the MSU giving website. To view the online annual report, visit www.moreheadstate.edu/giving.

Dear Alumni and Friends,

We are enormously grateful to all those who believe in and support MSU in whatever way they can. Every gift – whether $5 or $5 million – makes a big difference to Morehead State University, particularly during tough economic times when we’re balancing severe state funding cuts with the need to keep education affordable and of high quality. Private support makes an impact where it counts: it helps us hire and retain innovative, effective faculty members and educate and graduate successful students.

Sincerely,

James A. Shaw
Vice President, University Advancement
CEO, MSU Foundation Inc.

Every effort has been made to ensure the accuracy of this report and to include each donor who supported Morehead State University during 2012. If your name is misspelled, omitted or incorrectly listed, we sincerely apologize and hope you will let us know so that corrections can be made in future publications and in our records. "Before I ever stepped foot on campus, I knew Morehead State was for me. Here, I'm much more than a number. I am a part of something greater than myself. MSU has truly become my home away from home."

"Giving to MSU is an honor for me as an alumnus and a responsibility every alum should seriously consider. As alumni, we need to give much more! MSU changed my path in life and gave me the foundation I needed to succeed in business and the tools required to transition from student to employee. I feel a sense of satisfaction with every contribution to MSU, as I consider, 'who will be the next soaring Eagle that is yet to be discovered?'"

Creating a legacy for future generations . . .

If you have chosen to include MSU in your estate plans, we want to recognize you. Please contact the Office of Development at 877-690-4483 to join the Visionary Society.

What will your legacy be?

"Morehead State University meant the turning point in both of our lives. MSU gave us a great foundation on which to start and maintain our careers. Our experiences there, both academic and life, were so fundamental to our future lives that we chose to provide initial funding honoring a favorite professor and have recognized the University prominently in our wills."

- Wayne (68) and Brenda Judy (68)

Creating a legacy for future generations . . .

Nelson Carpenter (54) knows a thing or two about getting into character. The Eagle alum lives for theatre and has spent much of his life producing plays and teaching the craft to his students. As a member of the Visionary Society, Carpenter's generosity and dedication to MSU is also showing that he has character.

The 80-year-old alum and Maysville native earned a bachelor's degree in English from MSU and went on to earn an M.A. degree at the University of Mississippi in 1961. Since then, he's had an extensive professional, academic and theatrical career.

He taught eighth grade English and history at the Woodleigh School (Maysville) and later spent the majority of his career as a college instructor of speech and drama in Georgia, beginning at West Georgia College in Carrollton from 1962-69. He spent nearly two decades at Middle Georgia College in Cochran, where he produced 49 theatrical productions before he retired in 1988.

As a member of the Visionary Society, Carpenter wants the money in his estate to be used to fund scholarships for MSU theatre students.

"Morehead State was always there for me when I needed anything, so I felt I needed to help them," Carpenter said.

Nelson Carpenter (54), left, being recognized for establishing the Nelson M. Carpenter Theatre Endowment, by Dr. Bob Willenbrink (75), former theatre faculty and department chair.

Honorary Gifts

Making an honorary gift is a generous and thoughtful way to recognize a person's life and accomplishments. Many gifts to the Foundation are made to honor a friend, commemorate an important holiday or life event, or pay tribute to a special teacher. An honorary donation to the MSU Foundation is a popular alternative to traditional gifts on birthdays, anniversaries and special events such as Mother's Day, Father's Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas. Names in blue are being honored.
